

Cable management clips inside cable trays

Article Overview

Cable clips are essential for securing and organizing cables within cable trays, preventing sagging, tangling, and ensuring safe, accessible routing.

Types of Cable Clips

1. Lid Clips for Heavy Duty Trays: These clips are designed to secure lids onto heavy-duty cable trays, typically made from hot-dip galvanized steel for corrosion resistance and durability. They are recommended at 4-6 clips per lid section to ensure secure fastening and are suitable for both internal and external use . 2. Rod Clips and Spring Clips: Rod clips attach cable trays, baskets, or trunking to threaded rods, providing support arms (e.g., 68mm) for small cable containment systems. Spring clips offer a flexible, easy-to-install option for securing trays to support structures . 3. Adhesive, Screw-In, and Edge-Mount Clips: These clips secure individual cables or bundles within trays. Adhesive clips are easy to mount without drilling, while screw-in or edge-mount clips provide a more permanent solution. They can accommodate various cable diameters and allow for easy addition or removal of cables . 4. Tray-Specific Clips: Some clips are designed to attach directly to the sides of wire mesh or solid trays, supporting curves, slopes, and tees. These clips help maintain cable organization and prevent sagging, supporting significant loads depending on tray design .
