

How much does fiber optic cable cost per kilometer

Article Overview

The cost of one kilometer of fiber optic cable typically ranges from $5,000 to $30,000, depending on cable type, installation environment, and labor costs.

Material Costs

The raw material cost of fiber optic cable varies widely based on fiber type, strand count, and construction. Single-mode fiber, commonly used for long-distance transmission, generally costs $0.10 to $0.50 per foot, while multi-mode fiber ranges from $0.30 to $1.00 per foot. High-strand-count cables, armored cables, or specialized outdoor-rated cables can increase the cost significantly, with prices reaching $6 per foot for large backbone cables. Bulk purchases often reduce the per-meter cost, with typical wholesale prices ranging from $0.05 to $1.50 per meter.

Installation Costs

Installation is a major component of the total cost. Factors include labor, trenching, conduit, permits, and equipment. Urban installations are generally more expensive due to traffic management and infrastructure complexity, while rural installations may face higher costs from difficult terrain. Labor rates vary by region, with skilled technicians charging $75 to $180 per hour, and total labor for 1 km can range from 8 to 40 hours, depending on complexity.
