

Price List for Metal Spectrometers

Article Overview

Metal spectrometers range from around $10,000 for portable XRF analyzers to over $150,000 for high-end industrial optical emission systems.

Portable Metal Spectrometers

Handheld XRF analyzers, such as the JITA19201, are compact and designed for field use. These devices typically cost $10,000 to $25,000, depending on features like X-ray tube power, detector type, and storage capacity. They offer fast, non-destructive elemental analysis for metals like silver, tungsten, and copper, and are ideal for on-site testing in scrap yards, metal recycling, or quality control in manufacturing .

Benchtop and Industrial Spectrometers

Industrial-grade optical emission spectrometers (OES), such as the SPECTROMAXx or FOUNDRY-MASTER Smart 2, are designed for high-precision lab or production use. Prices for these systems generally start around $50,000 and can exceed $150,000, depending on the model, calibration options, and detection limits. These instruments provide rapid, accurate analysis of ferrous and non-ferrous metals, with advanced features like automated spark stands, multi-element detection, and remote monitoring .

Factors Affecting Price

- Technology Type: XRF analyzers are generally less expensive than OES systems due to simpler operation and portability.
- Precision and Speed: Higher-end spectrometers with faster analysis times and low...
