

Price per unit of steel cable trays

Article Overview

Steel cable trays typically cost between $1.20 and $9.60 per meter, depending on size, thickness, and finish.

Steel cable trays are a durable and practical solution for industrial and commercial cable management, designed to support heavy loads and withstand harsh environments . The price per meter varies widely based on several factors: Material and Coating: Galvanized steel is the most common and cost-effective option, while stainless steel offers higher corrosion resistance at a premium. Hot-dip galvanized (HDG) trays are more durable outdoors but cost more upfront, whereas pre-galvanized trays are cheaper but less resistant to corrosion . Powder-coated trays provide additional wear protection and color options. Tray Type and Size: Ladder trays, which support heavy cables, are more expensive than perforated or wire mesh trays, which are lighter and suitable for data or communication cables . Wider and thicker trays require more material, increasing the cost per meter . Market Trends and Bulk Orders: Prices for standard steel trays in 2026 range from $1.20 to $9.60 per meter, with bulk orders often requiring a minimum of 200 meters and offering potential discounts . Importing from overseas suppliers can reduce costs by 30-50%, though shipping and tariffs may apply . Installation and Labor Costs: Skilled labor, installation complexity, and site conditions can significantly affect the total project cost. Steel trays are generally faster to install than conduit systems, which can save 40-60% of labor costs on large projects . Regional and Project Considerations: Costs may vary depending on location, accessibility, and environmental conditions. For example, outdoor or coastal installations may require corrosion-resistant finishes, increasing the price . In summary, when budgeting for steel cable trays, expect $1.20-$9.60 per meter for the tray itself, with additional costs for installation, labor,...
