

Ranking of Export Flame-Retardant Optical Cable Manufacturers

Article Overview

Top global manufacturers of flame-retardant optical cables include Prysmian Group, Corning, TKH Group, FS Cables, and Sumitomo Electric, recognized for their safety compliance, innovation, and international reach.

Top Manufacturers and Profiles

- Prysmian Group (Italy / Global) Prysmian is the world's largest cable manufacturer, leading in circuit integrity (CI) and flame-retardant optical cables. Their Firetuf® series maintains signal transmission for up to 120 minutes during a fire, making it ideal for critical infrastructure like airports, hospitals, and subway tunnels. Prysmian has a strong global footprint and invests heavily in R&D for halogen-free, low-smoke, and smart cable technologies .
- Corning (USA / Global) Corning specializes in plenum-rated (OFNP) optical fiber cables with low-loss performance. Their cables are engineered to self-extinguish and burn cleanly, making them suitable for commercial buildings, universities, and corporate HQs. Corning is a pioneer in optical fiber technology and maintains a strong presence in North America and Asia .
- TKH Group (Netherlands / Global) TKH Group offers a wide range of flame-retardant optical fiber solutions for industrial, commercial, and infrastructure applications. They focus on high-modulus plastic loose-tube designs with water-blocking compounds, ensuring durability and fire safety compliance. TKH has a strong European and Asian market presence .
- FS Cables (China / Global) FS Cables provides fire-resistant optical fiber cables for both single-mode and multi-mode applications. Their products are widely used in da...
