

Red light on mobile fiber optic router

2. Imported design is convenient for expansion.

The design of two inlets saves space and allows for rear line entry.

Article Overview

A red LOS (Loss of Signal) light on your fiber optic router indicates that the device is not receiving a proper optical signal, often due to cable issues, ISP outages, or router/ONT problems.

Common Causes

- Loose or damaged fiber cable: A partially connected, bent, or crushed fiber cable can block the signal .
- Dirty or misaligned connectors: Dust on SC/APC connectors can prevent proper signal transmission .
- ISP outage or maintenance: Service interruptions upstream can cause the LOS light to turn red .
- Router or ONT malfunction: Hardware issues or power fluctuations may prevent the device from syncing with the ISP .

Troubleshooting Steps

- Check for local outages: Visit your ISP's website or social media pages to confirm if there's a service disruption in your area .
- Inspect the fiber cable: Ensure it is firmly connected, free of sharp bends, kinks, or visible damage .
- Clean the fiber connector: Use a fiber cleaning pen or lint-free cloth to gently clean the connector tip, avoiding direct contact with your fingers .
- Power cycle the router/ONT: Unplug the device for 30 seconds, then plug it back in and wait a few minutes for it to reconnect .
- Check all connections: Verify that power, LAN, and fiber cables are securely seated...
