

What s needed to make a cabinet

Article Overview

To build a cabinet, you need plywood or dimensional lumber, wood glue, screws or nails, hinges, basic woodworking tools, and a clear plan with measurements.

Materials

- Plywood or solid wood: Most cabinets use $\frac{3}{4}$ inch furniture-grade plywood for the sides, bottom, and shelves. Maple, poplar, or birch are common choices for face frames and doors if building a face-frame cabinet .
- Wood glue: Essential for joining panels securely .
- Fasteners: Pocket screws, brad nails, or standard wood screws to hold panels together .
- Hinges and hardware: Cabinet hinges for doors, drawer slides if including drawers, and handles or knobs .
- Back panel: $\frac{1}{4}$ inch plywood or support pieces to square the cabinet .
- Optional: Toe-kick material, adjustable shelf pins, filler strips, and trim for finishing touches .

Tools

- Measuring tools: Tape measure, square, and pencil for accurate dimensions .
- Cutting tools: Circular saw, table saw, or band saw for cutting panels and lumber .
- Drilling tools: Drill with bits and a pocket hole jig for precise joinery .
- Clamps: To hold pieces square while glue and screws set .
- Sanding tools: Sandpaper (120 and 220 grit) or a power sander for smooth surfaces .
