

Where are Huijue cable tray manufacturers located

Article Overview

Huijue cable trays are manufactured primarily in China, with headquarters in Shanghai and production bases in Jiangsu and Shanghai Fengpu.

Huijue Group's headquarters is located in the Shanghai Free Trade Zone, Lingang New Area, serving as the central hub for management and research and development. The company operates six wholly owned subsidiaries, with production bases in Jiangsu Haian and Shanghai Fengpu, which include research and development centers and four professional integrated production lines. The total manufacturing area spans 100,000 square meters, employing over 1,000 staff to ensure high production capacity and quality control. The company's sales and service outlets are distributed across cities throughout China, and its products are exported to multiple countries and regions worldwide, supporting industries such as government, transportation, education, and telecommunications. This extensive network allows Huijue to maintain efficient supply chains and provide global distribution of its cable tray systems. For international buyers, Huijue also engages in overseas B2B trade, including platforms like Alibaba, facilitating direct communication with suppliers and access to customized cable tray solutions. In summary, Huijue cable tray manufacturing is concentrated in Shanghai and Jiangsu, China, with a strong domestic and international distribution network to support both local and global markets.
